1. She fangirls over Justin Bieber

Everyone went through a stage where your bedrooms were covered in posters over a teenage pop sensation. Looking back, you may get embarrassed over your passions for a celebrity you never even met, yet you all experienced this phase. Unlike most adolescent girls, Billie got the chance to release a track with her idol. Some dreams do come true.

2. She dyes her hair fun colors

Nothing excites teenage girls more than pissing off your parents. Those high schools center on personal transition. Some phases help you grow, while others make you look like a blueberry. You don't understand the regret that comes with impulsive choices until we sit crying over the sink while your mom tries to rinse the kool-aid dip-dye out of your hair.

3. She had a gamer phase

The inspiration for Billie's song "ilomilo" comes from an arcade game. It consists of two characters -- one named ilo and one named milo. You don't earn a prize though. Players aim to get ilo and milo together so they can hug. Aww. Why don't they hug in Angry Birds?

4. She sang "I'll call you when the party's over"

When fighting with your significant other, what better way to protest than by going to a party and turning off your phone? Nothing makes your person more jealous than them knowing you're with other people and ignoring all of their texts/calls because you're "too busy."

5. She likes 13 Reasons Why

Billie recorded two songs for the 13 Reasons Why series. "Bored" was on the soundtrack for season 1 and "lovely" ft Khalid made the cut for season 2. All of us are guilty of binging this show each time a new season is released, and we have LOVED executive producer Selena Gomez since she appeared on Wizards of Waverly Place. We're jealous Billie!

6. She wears oversized clothes

Like any other 17-year-old, Billie dresses like a VSCO girl. Her oversized hoodie look compares to the looks of other girls wearing big t-shirts and sweatshirts to cover up their shorts. Billie coins this look as a way to promote body positivity. No one can tell what's how big or small she is if you can't see what's under her clothes.

7. She keeps up with Vogue

Some teens read vogue, while others pose for the front cover! Whichever you do, keeping up with current fashion trends is essential during those last few years of high school. How can you get ahead if you don't dress the part? Billie loves giving fashion advice just as much as she loves to model.

8. She searches for the dream car

What's a better coming-of-age moment for all teenagers than finally getting your license? Finally getting your first car! Nothing is more exciting than looking up all of the fancy cars that just came out, whether you can afford it or not. Billie loves checking out the cool, new cars she finds when traveling and posting pictures of herself posing with them!

9. She obsessed over The Office

Billie's song "My Strange Addiction" centered around everyone's favorite TV show, The Office. Like other teens, this TV show is an addiction for her so she used her platform to showcase a hilarious moment. Her obsession even got her to meet Rainn Wilson, the actor who played Dwight Shrute!

10. She wants to travel the world
